OUR MONTHLY VISITORS.

The budget of magazines and other serials have been nated since our last general notice. As usual we begin with that favorite of readers who enjoy something of an advancing character.
The Atlantic Monthly. It opens with the confessions of a patent medicine man, who passed through its varied experience. The Prayer Seeker, Oldtown Fireside, in which Sam Lawson is a prominent character; Resemblance between the Buddhist and Roman Catholic Religions; Joseph and his Friends, with many other articles by leading writers.
Fields, Osgood & Co. Boston.

Harper's Magazine begins its 42d volume with the present month. Its character for standard literary reading is so extensive with the English language. While the illustrations are attractions to every one, and of the best kind, its instructive pages in various branches of information are much more so. Harper Bros. N. Y.

The Schoolday Visitor, devoted to every good word and work, this month concludes its fourteenth volume. Established in a little country village—Knoxville, Jefferson county, in 1856 by Alex Clark, at that time a country school teacher, and called it the School Visitor, in a small form, it has grown to magazine dimensions, and during its progress has ever wielded a beneficent influence in the minds of its many readers.
Daughaday & Becker, Philadelphia, Pa.

Illustrated Mathematical Almanac and Annual for 1871. By Daughaday & Becker.
This is a unique publication, unlike anything in a literary or educational way that has preceded it. The contents of this beautifully printed and illustrated work of 64 pages is well indicated by the title. A large portion of it is devoted to illustrations of mathematical problems, which cannot fail to interest the student in this branch of knowledge. Price 35 cents.

Phrenological Journal and Richards Monthly. The December number completes the 51st vol. of the Journal. The editor, Mr. S. R. Wells, in his valedictory for 1870, lays the principles this monthly has so long and ably sustained in a pleasant chapter, following with the discussion of moral and intellectual questions of moment to all who would be posted on matters pertaining to mental and moral philosophy. So the book is filled with that which tends to make-all better who reads its contents. Packard's deposition, as usual, is full of life and energy, boldly promulgating what the writers regard as the standard of right. S. R. Wells, N. Y.

Balton, by Thomas & Tallbot, Boston, furnishes the reader with a goodly assurance of excellent moral and literary reading, many of the articles being liberally illustrated. This work never fails to be sought after.

The Herald of Health, by Wood & Holbrook, N. Y., opens with a valuable chapter giving a scientific view of the effects of alcoholic beverages on the body, followed by a long list of articles more or less connected with the discussion of questions regarding health. Its teachings are radical, and where properly appreciated authoritative on all matters coming in its range of treatment.

Journal of Horticulture and Floral Magazine, by J. E. Tilton & Co., Boston, don't fail to keep up a live interest in the department of labor it so well elucidates and beautifully exemplifies.

Illustrated Annual of Phrenology and Physiology by S. R. Wells, N. Y. Partaking somewhat after the nature of an almanac this annual adds much more than the common calendars contain. It constitutes a book of some 80 pages, in which the principles of mental philosophy, according to the teachings of phrenology are illustrated and sustained by a formidable array of proofs.

Peters' Musical Monthly favors its patrons with another book full of music, instrumental and vocal, sacred and secular. Here are more than a dozen pieces of music—all for 30 cents. $3 a year, J. L. Peters, N. Y.

The Technologist, an illustrated journal of the industrial arts, devotes itself to the discussion of problems connected with engineering, manufacturing and building.
These questions are treated scientifically by writers qualified for the task. Industrial Publishing Co., N. Y.

The Little Corporal, by Sewall & Miller, Chicago, Ill., although young, is increasing in stature as well as age, having completed its 11th volume. But he is a precocious little fellow, for he tells a great many things, and puts such a charm in his manner of telling that even older folks are induced to read his pleasant sayings.

The Treasury—of course for a grade of smaller people than the company under drill by the little corporal—fills the place chosen by its managers admirably. The tiny fellows who can read the alphabet are able to see what this little book of theirs is driving at by its pictures. J. L. Storey, Boston.

The ever beautiful Riverside Magazine, which has made so many friends throughout the country, in its December number announces that it is merged into Scribner's Monthly Illustrated Magazine. By Scribner & Co., N. Y., J. G. Holland, a well known popular writer, editor. This new candidate for patronage is the successor to the above named periodical and Putnam's Magazine, a favorite of many thousands of people, which succeeded in achieving a popularity that but few periodicals have attained. Under the direction of its editor and present publishers there is no reason why it will not continue to advance in public esteem wherever introduced. Among its articles for December is a very interesting description of the Hoosac Tunnel, of which everybody that reads has some notions. The tunnel is a long subterranean work, some four miles—for a railroad track in Massachusetts, but not yet finished.

Arthur's Home Magazine and the Children's Hour, by T. S. Arthur & Son, Philadelphia, are choice publications, under the control and direction of one of the best men of the times. Mr. A. has for many years been sending forth his monthly, every issue of which has been laden with articles of the best moral tendency, and especially has he favored the great temperance cause. His Ten Nights in a Bar Room have probably been read by millions of people, and so popular is the work that it has been dramatized and presented on the stage, where it evidently has tended to good results.

The Student and Schoolmate, by J. H. Allen, concludes its 26th volume. It is a re-tiran magazine, genial and kind in spirit, abounding in useful teachings, and devoted to the interests of boys and girls, of whom there are a few left in this country.

ABOUT LIQUOR SELLING.

Mr. Editor:—You will please to pardon me for again troubling you or occupying your columns upon this subject; but I am not quite willing to let the question rest at this point, as you introduce several new arguments to sustain your position. Before noticing them, however, let me correct a mistake. You have made my former article read both in the singular and plural number. I did not so intend it.
Upon examination I notice your paper is published by J. Frost and P. Welker, nothing is said about the editor. I shall, therefore, address this in the singular number.

Another item, perhaps of little moment, yet one I will mention, i. e., I do not really like to be called a "grogseller." This term may apply to those who deal exclusively in this article, at retail, but not to those who deal in a general grocery business. You first notice the point that liquor selling is justifiable because it is profitable or that to succeed is the desire of every business man. And add, that, carrying out this argument it places the entire grog-selling class in the attitude of merely "mercenary" men, groveling after no better reward than the acquisition of property, and almost necessarily implies that they are devoid of those graces and characteristics which distinguish a philanthropic and Christian man.

"Mercenary," actuated by a hope of reward."—Webster. I readily admit the above definition is accepted and practiced by not only every grocery man but every business man in Massillon. You, sir, are not an exception to this rule. You labor to "acquire property" as the reward of such labor. It is the hope of reward that actuates us all. We "put into action" the powers we possess; our object is to acquire property. More money has been expended, more miles traveled, more suffering endured, more fatigue and hardships borne, for this than all other sources combined. It is the reward of acquisition of property, that stimulates all to labor. Neither can I understand how the acquisition of property should deprive a person of those graces and characteristics which distinguish a philanthropic man.

"Philanthropy" is the very principle that actuates the class of people under consideration.
"They love mankind" in a marked degree, they love their society, their patrons and their geniality. Benevolence is practiced by those who possess, and they possess who have acquired.
As a rule the Christian man possesses "graces" in proportion to the amount of means he may possess. In benevolence and charity, so far as this place is concerned, I see but little difference between the professor and non-professor. We receive the patronage of the Christian, hence his influence—moral and material—is on our side. He that is not against us is for us, and being sustained by the Christian and the philanthropist, why should we be devoid of those graces which characterize them? There are perhaps few Christians engaged in this traffic. Yet there are less who discourage it by their acts or influence.

"Lead us not into temptation" is equally applicable to a large number of professors. Everything carried to extremes is a temptation for others to imitate. And no man intends to go to extremes in the use of liquor. Some are doubtless a little imprudent, and yet even these enjoy themselves much better than is generally supposed.

The "right and wrong," "virtue and vice" are controlled by the community in which they are practiced. "The vice" and "wrong" are governed, controlled and influenced by the moral and religious citizens. These, in Massillon, are with us, and were it wrong they would certainly denounce it in word and deed. Such is not the case, hence it is right. True, desolation, crime and death may, and doubtless, in some instances result from the use of ardent spirits; but not from this alone. We do not recommend the abuse, but the moderate use of such drinks, and in this the laws of the government, the laws of the state, and the laws of society sustain us. The civilized world are with us, and pronounce it right. They are opposed and until the majority denounce it, it will be considered right.
It is this fact that sustains us. The people are with us, Christians, moral ists, spiritualists, skeptics and infidels, as a whole render their decision by their acts. "Christians do more than any other class, yes, more than all others to encourage us in selling liquor and to continue the use of liquor in any community. They say the Bible teaches them to "avoid even the appearance of evil." That "men should not look upon the wine cup." "That no drunkard shall inherit the kingdom of heaven." And the world looks to them for some practical exhibition of this teaching. They claim to have become separated from the world, "regenerated sanctified," etc., etc. And yet we find them as a whole, upholding us who sell ardent spirits, by their presence, example, friendship, preference and patronage. Only a short time since a prominent deacon in one of the churches, refused to give an order on the temperance groceries, but came in person to us and procured the articles necessary. The store was filled at the time, and was passing freely, yet it did not disturb him. I allude to this to show that our practice is right, that we have the verdict of the only class that can possibly control its use.

You say the "grog-sellers make the calaboose a necessity, and those who do so should be made to share a portion of its accommodations and luxuries." We now have a calaboose convenient in size and comfortable in its arrangements; but we will probably be excused from accepting the charity of our city in this respect so long as our citizens defend us from the charges you bring against us.

Before closing this article permit me to say a few words in regard to the philanthropy practiced by us. We provide pleasant rooms, agreeable acsociates, and interesting amusements for the young men of this city, to while away the long and otherwise tedious evenings. Some of us, at least, in addition to the social glass have prepared our counters and tables with literature to improve the mind, and aid in entertaining those who favor us with their presence. The citizens of Massillon have sustained us in this, and appreciate our efforts in behalf of the youth.
They have left it wholly with us, for there is not a reading room in the city of Massillon outside of our stores and groceries.

Possibly in some places, those who sell might be obliged to occupy the calaboose, but we have done too much for the city of Massillon to receive such treatment at the hands of its citizens.
The calaboose is situated in Massillon, and this question is to be decided by our citizens. I am ready to submit the question. Yet, should you desire, I am ready to answer, so far as I am able, any arguments you may present in favor of your position. Until you have presented a stronger claim, I assert that those who drink, and otherwise violate the laws of the land should occupy the calaboose.

FUNERAL SERMONS.

As a general rule, are not very attractive reading to the mass of people—they are of chief interest to the friends and relatives only of those concerning whom they are pronounced. The following is an extract from a discourse of this sort delivered by Rev. A. B.
Bradford, a Presbyterian preacher, a man who has become venerable in the ministerial profession. It was delivered near New Castle, Pa. at the burial of a man named Johnson, who is said to have been distinguished by the lat-itudinarianism of his views on religious subjects. Mr. Bradford don't send the soul of this man to perdition because of his want of agreement in orthodox views; but he was a person of good repute, and exemplary in his life, places him among that class of whom it may be said, "Well done, good and faithful servant." As a general rule those who belong to what are called orthodox churches take different views, and their theory seems to send one not of their belief—not to heaven. It is the privilege, however, for each and all, in this country, to become members of any persuasion, and no one has authority to question their motives for so doing—or they may be members of no religious body, and yet be looked upon as worthy, exemplary citizens. It is for the future of the last named class that bro. Bradford speaks, and here is wherein he differs from the mass of brethren of his profession. Mr. B. is a bold thinker and a bold expression on all subjects which come up for discussion.

There was a time when it was unsatisfactory for a man to publicly oppose slavery, but there always were some people who assailed it, and Mr. Bradford was one of that class. For nearly or quite thirty years he has been an abolitionist, a term once popularly imposed upon him. He lectured, preached, prayed and labored for the freedom of the slave, and abated not his work till the year of jubilee proclaimed some millions of bondmen free and equal to the rest of us in human rights. So highly were his talents and labors esteemed that Mr. Lincoln sent Mr. Bradford to Chicago, as the U. S. Consul, which place he filled to the satisfaction of the government. His health failed and he returned to his home, where he occasionally preached, but from lack of bodily strength is not regular in his ministra-tions. We take the liberty of placing a portion of his plain words before our readers, and if any differ from his sentiments these columns are open to them. So well pleased were the mass of his hearers with this discourse that they had it printed in the New Castle Guardian. It may be recollected by some of our citizens that Mr. B. delivered a fourth of July oration here in 1865, with which all were pleased.

"But you say he was no Christian, only a moralist!" and therefore must go down with Charles Dickens, Byron and hosts of other learned men, to burn in eternal fire. Let us look at this matter.

"On a certain occasion, a certain man came to Jesus and put the same old question to him, which was asked and answered by Bleach, and by David, but in these words: 'Good Master, if what shall I do to inherit eternal life?' Did He say in reply: 'Believe in the divinity of Christ. Join an orthodox church. Don't go near the Amentians, Methodists, or Campbellites, who teach error; but connect with a Presbyterian church. Say grace twice a day at a meal, asking a blessing and returning thanks. Baptize your children, and observe the Lord's supper, and attend church regularly on the Sabbath, and the prayer meetings during the week?' I say, did Jesus make this reply to the enquirer? If such a man would come to us with such a question, we would give him such an answer and pile up more upon his conscience than if he did not do as we said, he would be an infidel, and when he died, would go down to hell and burn forever. But what answer did Jesus make? What did He lay down as a test of religious character and as the basis of eternal life? Before I give you the answer, allow me to ask what you are convinced that Jesus was competent to reply? Did he understand the plan of salvation as well as Paul did, or the Evangelist, or the Westminster assembly of Divines? If you are clear upon these points, I am prepared to give you His words. Here they are:—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and soul, and strength; and thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Upon these two precepts hang all the law, and the prophets. This is the sum total—the whole duty of man. It is exactly of a piece with what he is represented as saying in the 24th of Matthew, where he again lays down the grounds of the eternal life of the righteous, "For I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat, I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink, I did not, unto one of the least of these, these, my brethren, ye did it, or did it not unto me." Not a word about church membership. Not a word about dogmas. Not a word about baptism and the Lord's supper. Not a word about ceremonies of any kind.
Not a word about experiences. Only these two simple precepts that a child can comprehend, and that command the admiration of the philosopher, love to God, evinced by keeping his commandments; and love to man, evinced by a life of well doing. If, then, we accept the test of character established by the founder of Christianity himself, we have a right to conclude that our friend, Master Johnson, was a child of God, and an heir of eternal life, and that he has now entered upon the enjoyment of his inheritance. You who have lived beside him all your days, and have observed his going out and coming in, bear witness if he did not meet his requirements as fully as any other man, of his acquaintance, either in the church or out of it.

"Who is a Christian? How much of what each sect regards as truth may a man reject, and yet after all be saved?
Are the Campbellites Christians? The southern general assembly say no.
Even the Evangelical Alliance will not allow such a man as Isaac Errett or John Phillips to sit among them as a member." "A Scotch Methodist Christian?" the Catholics, who compose the majority of Christendom say no. Are the Quakers, who are applying the principles of Jesus Christ to the Indian question—are they Christians? And Florence Nightengale, whose Christian-like labors among the military hospitals of Scutari, are known the world over—a woman whose very shadow as she moved among the wounded soldiers, carried health with it, upon whomsoever it fell—was she a Christian? Alas! no, for she is a homoquian instead of a homo-quian, and this single letter in her great is deemed sufficient to bar the door of heaven against her! And our own dear Dorothea Dix, whose name is co-extensive with the race for her life-long services in behalf of the insane, and who only suspended her work in that department when the war of the rebellion broke out the nation needed her in another field. Dorothea Dix—why the soldiers in our southern hospitals blessed the very syllables that spelled her name; they would have found both health and honor in being permitted to touch the hem of her garment.
Dorothea Dix—was she a Christian, and orthodox enough to suit you? No, she was not; for she did not accept our Presbyterian views of Christ, and therefore, she is not a Christian in Western Pennsylv-nia, that would allow this glorious woman to come to its communion table, because she is a Unitarian!

"Am I not right then, in saying that while a Christian, according to the definition of Christ, is known, and read, and acknowledged of all men, a theological Christian is an undefinable personage who has not made his appearance on our planet, so as to be universally recognized, for eighteen hundred years, for example?" "How wrong is it then, and how childish, to sit in judgment upon a Unitarian brother, when you make a theological dogma the standard of judgment. I think God, in regard to our deceased friend, that his soul is beyond the reach of mortals; and I have no doubt whatever that God, our dear Father in Heaven, will do for him, and for all the rest of us, when we come to die, the very best he can,
with his divine power and benevolence, in promoting our happiness and engagement in the future state."

"Having said this much, allow me to say one word more: I am very jealous of my rights as a thinker and a searcher after truth. I would not allow the angel Gabriel, without a commission signed and sealed by the Almighty God himself, to lay the weight of my intellect or conscience—either of my intellect or conscience—
have no doubt whatever that God, our
with his divine power and benevolence,

"And the death of Master Johnson, as well as his life, may be a blessing to you, by giving occasion to this discussion, which should quicken your inquiries after truth, give you more Christian views of the rights of the of speech, and rebuke the miserable dogmatism that wishes to carry the spirit of the dark ages into the middle of the nineteenth century."

Man's ministers of to-day are cowards. They preach Sabbath after Sabbath to men and women who they know are on their way to hell, and yet they care not tell them personally of their sins. Such ministers are hirelings, and like their congregations, will wake up in endless perdition. Woe! woe! on such ministers.

Men are wise to do evil, but foolish toward that which is good. With a hundred eyes like Argus, he searches out opportunities for sinning but like Balaam, he is stone blind as to repentance and return to God.

As an evidence of the value of the new invention for consuming sparks and cinders on railroads, we are informed that on a recent trip of forty-five miles in Massachusetts, fourteen bushels of this stuff were accumulated.

Dr. J. Johnson being in company with some scandal mongers, one of them having accused an absent friend of resorting to rouge, he observed—"It is, perhaps, after all, much better for a lady to rub her own cheeks than to blacken other people's character."

LOCAL MATTERS.

EUREKA.—The Members of Eureka Enfranchisement will meet at their hall on Friday evening, the 16th inst., important business is to be transacted, and a full attendance of the Patriarchs is desired.

This evening and to-morrow evening our citizens will not forget that the Bell Ringers—the Bonger Family—will give concerts of their beautiful music in the opera house. The attractions which their music hold out will not fail to favor them with a well filled house.

Don't forget the lecture on California on next Tuesday evening in the Presbyterian church, by Mr. Eells of Cleveland.

HOT CAKES.—We have been shown one of the most complete contrivances for baking griddle cakes we have ever seen. The patent reversible griddle is a saving of time and material, bakes a much lighter cake, more healthy and palatable, and much faster. It must be seen to be appreciated. Mr. A. H. Peirce is the agent for the manufacturer and has supplied many of our citizens with the article, which all, without exception, unite in its praise. Price, $1.50, warranted to give satisfaction. Orders left at London's store will be promptly attended to. No family can afford to be without it.

A Valuable Book, as may be seen by the notices elsewhere, in connection with the New York Observer, are advertised in to-day's paper. This religious paper is one of the oldest, best established and ably conducted of its class in this country. And the Year Book will embrace a vast amount of useful information under such heads as Explanations of the Cycle of Time, Civil and Commercial Department, Agricultural and Ecclesiastical Department, Department of Church Work and Education, and other items of much interest to the reader.

An Akron band visited this place on Tuesday on their way homeward from Canton, where they participated in a concert on Monday evening, and saluted our city with a few pieces of their choice music.

Mrs. Donaldson is agent for the sale of a new pictorial family Bible, of the largest size, elegantly bound, containing about one thousand illustrations, and provided with leaves in which to insert photographs. It is a beautiful edition, and will be prized in any family, as a possession well worthy of obtaining. One good feature about it is, that it has maps, which will give the reader an idea of places and countries over which the Israelites, St. Paul, and other notable scripture characters traveled. Our citizens, who may soon be called upon will be surprised to see the amount of useful knowledge that is combined in this great work, in addition to the scriptures, and what properly belongs thereto.

The occasional rains interspersed with snows which soon melt, has a tendency to keep up a rather unusual supply of mud on our streets, but whoever is in search of that now plentiful article can be supplied in wholesale quantities by going to Canton, where they have it in its native purity, thick, thin or medium to suit the fancy—ankle deep, knee deep, or deeper if desired.

By posters about town it will be seen that Mr. D. O. Brown keeps on hand an excellent quality of coal from Burton's mines, with which he is prepared to supply customers in any desirable quantity. Mr. B. is also prepared to weigh hay, hogs, coal or any other articles, as may be seen by his sign.

Mr. Clay continues to make improvements to his premises west of the canal, and in addition to the room occupied by Huntman & Mong with furniture, he is fitting up two more rooms adjoining, one of which will be used by the above firm, and the other for a mechanics shop of some kind.

It seems but a short time since new year's day was ushered upon us, and now it will be but a very few days until January 1st comes and new year will visit us. These visitations of time appear to be getting nearer together every year, and after a while they will rush past us as the telegraph poles appear to do when we are on a lightning train. As time is thus buying on we have, or should have no periods of loafing, but be up and at work.

A few evenings since as a party of young ladies were having a good time all to themselves, they were favored with a package or bundle thrown among them by certain of the boys, in which was a copy of the "Superscription." To the would-be sixteenth amendment. On opening the mysterious object it was found to contain a goodly lot of rations in the shape of pretzels and bologna, and a paper on which was the words, "Congratulations of the fifteenth amendment." The ladies not to be outdone in politeness, and to show that they appreciated the generous gift take this method of thanking their attentive friends for such generosity as they manifested in handing over their contributions.

The latest change of the time table, for this place will be found on first page. The entire table will be altered next week.

The lecture referred to in last week's issue, will be delivered by Rev. Dr. Eells, of Cleveland, at the Presbyterian church on Tuesday evening next, the 20th inst. His theme is, The Strange Things of California. The lecturer spent several years in California, and we have no doubt that he will render the strange things familiar to his hearers. As our city enjoys no course of lectures this season this will be regarded as a fine opportunity for hearing the excellent and popular lecture by an able speaker, for half the price of a common lecture.

The boiler of the paper mill has been injured recently, and the works are stopping a few days for repairs. It has at present a capital of $50,000. The following are the names of the directors: N. W. Taylor, C. F. Bicknell, A. Backert and J. Silk, and F. L. Baldwin. Mr. Taylor was elected president, E. Backert, secretary, treasurer and agent, and J. Silk, superintendent.

of Spermatorrhea, or Seminal weakness, involuntary seminal losses, impotency, mental and physical incapacity, impediments to marriage, &c.; also, consumption, epilepsy and fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife, pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land. Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, postpaid on receipt of six cents or two post stamps.

DR. WHITTESEY, ETC. Dear Sir:—Having stated it verbally to you, I have no hesitation in writing the fact, although not disposed in favor or to recommend patent medicines in general. I do this more readily in regard to the sick headache cure prepared by Dr. Whittesey, of Norwalk, Ohio. I have analyzed and tried it, and I recommend it as one of the best dyspepsia cures ever invented, and I feel that in recommending Whittesey's cure I am doing it act of justice to the compounder of it, and an act of benevolence to those afflicted with dyspepsia and sick headache for which it is recommended. Yours Respectfully, FRANCIS RAAS, M.D.

TO PHYSICIANS.

New York, August 15th, 1868.

Allow to call attention to my Preparation of Compound Extract Buchu. The component parts are Buchu, Long Leaf, Cubeba, Juniper Berries.

Mode of Preparation.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper berries, by distillation to form a fine gin. Cubeba extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries, very little sugar is used and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu as prepared by druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance, the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The buchu in my preparation is pure; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection it will be found not to be a tincture, as made in pharmacopoeia, nor is it a syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exists. In this, you have a knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation.

With a feeling of profound confidence,

I am, very respectfully,

H. T. HELMBOLD,

Chemist and druggist of 19 years experience.

RAILROAD ACROSS THE ANDES.

A project for a railroad across the Andes to connect with lines on either side, in the countries of Chili and Argentine Republic, is now about to be put into execution. The latter government authorized, some months ago, Mr. Rossetti, an engineer, to make a survey of the passes of the Andes, which he has done, and makes very favorable reports. The pass of Parí, or Teno is the one which he has selected as presenting the least difficulties for the construction of the road. The greatest elevation of the road by this pass is 10,256 feet, and the most difficult section is a ravine where there is a difference of level of 1,591 feet in a distance of 22,800 feet—a grade of 70 in 1000. The necessary length of the road will be about one thousand miles, and it will cost, it is estimated, about $20,000,000. The larger part of the road falls within the territory of the Argentine Republic. The latter government will bear the main part of the expense, the government of Chili agreeing to construct one fifth of the road.

The enterprise is spoken of as not being near as difficult as was the construction of the Pacific road. The latter scheme was believed by very many to be impracticable until the road was put into operation, and the opposite was demonstrated. This Andean railroad will be of the utmost utility in South America. The Argentine republic confidently expects a large immigration from the west, and great benefits from the rich mining districts which will be opened up. There is also an extensive trade between the eastern and western coasts, and the route, says an English journal, would almost certainly command the mail and passenger traffic between Peru, Chili and Europe, and might also, it adds, open up communication with the Australasian colonies by another practicable route.

It will take about four years to complete the road.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly, poor appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or biliousness, and nothing will cure you so speedily and permanently as Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical discovery. It also cures the most lingering coughs, at the same time strengthening and purifying the whole system. Remember that Dr. Pierce's private revenue stamp bearing upon it his portrait, name and address, is upon every bottle of the genuine. Sold by druggists.

Surprise parties will again be epidemic this winter. Recipients must be notified of the intended surprise a week in advance, in order to enable them to prepare a list of those to be invited. If this precaution is neglected the parties are liable to be disgusted as well as surprised.

The Philadelphia Medical and Surgical Review does not know of any drug which would produce the immediate yet temporary insensibility, which is popularly supposed to follow the use of drugged liquor, and is of the opinion that the talk about liquor having been drugged is a sort of apology for having been drunk.

A Japanese pillow is nothing but a cradle rocker, broad enough to stand alone, with a semi circular depression on the upper side. ## The Independent,

Massillon, Ohio,

Is now Seven Years Old, and "Still Lives."

Without boasting of being an organ of immense influence, we may with diffidence claim that the paper is not without usefulness in the right direction, ever contending for justice in all the living issues of the day. But its principal business has ever been to subserve the local interests of the community with which it is identified, and so it proposes to continue. Its home record of the ever varying phases of business, of the prosperity of the city, and of the social and moral state of society here, with other matters too numerous to specify, will give those who come after us, and have occasion to examine the files of this paper, a faithful history of the years of its existence.

We solicit the continued patronage of our people in the confidence that we shall render satisfaction—at least as near as we can come at it—and for such as are removing elsewhere we hope to make the Independent a very welcome visitor.

ADVERTISING

Dr. J. LONG.

Eclectic Physician,

Has located himself at Massillon, O., for the treatment of Female &amp; Chronic Diseases.

Office on Main street, four doors east of the American Hotel.

All consultations and examinations of patients made free of charge.

Dr. Long examines and explains your disease without asking any questions. If he understands your case you know it, and cannot be deceived. If he cannot tell your disease, and how you feel without asking questions he does not consider himself competent to treat your case. This is the criterion to go by, and patients should not be satisfied with any other. This is the only direct and positive evidence of my ability as a scientific physician, and by this standard I am willing to be judged.

A proper diagnosis of local disease, without constitutional symptoms, that is, not affecting the system generally, must depend upon the judgment of both patient and physician.

Give Dr. Long a call, and satisfy yourself whether he understands your case sufficiently well to treat them successfully.

Dr. Long may be consulted in the German and English languages. Address letters, JAMES LONG, M. D., 871-ly Massillon, Ohio.
